I come, I see, I'll conquer.

Writing 1

(1) As is clearly seen from the picture, a little boy holding the self-eliminating belief that "I cannot make it" always sank into disappointment in the past, but now he is boldly giving a presentation, displaying self-assurance as well as wild joy. Such a change could be attributed to the power of strong confidence.

(2) Everyone might encounter obstacles, but one could never be crippled in setbacks if he holds on to his beliefs. _____

(3) Confidence to people is what wings to birds. With a firm mind, there is always a way out of any predicament. Just as William Hazlitt put it, "As is our spirit, so is our capacity." Believe in yourself then you can overcome your self-limiting notions and experience how incredibly rewarding it is to live a life filled with purpose.

I come, I see, I'll conquer.

Writing 2

(1) The first sight of the picture impresses us deeply by showing a man holding an umbrella of "responsibility" to withstand the fierce wind and rain, with other two men striving to share the duty. The picture vividly shows the importance of taking on obligations, as well as the power of responsibility.

(2) Being responsible is of great benefit to both the people being counted on and the person putting reliance. _____

(3) Being responsible is not only to perform one's duties, but also to own up to making a mistake and then striving to fix it. Making a mistake doesn't equate with being a mistake, but to avoid acting responsibly does. Just as Steven Jobs once put it, "Live in a way that is ethically responsible, you'll find it gives more meaning to your life."

I come, I see, I'll conquer.

Writing 3

(1) In this picture, a man is dreaming about his great success, but he is striving to pursue his goals step by step and he is doing so in an unswerving and unflinching way. Obviously, what is intended in the cartoon demonstrates that it is no easy job to be high-achievers.

(2) (2) Many indispensable factors together may lead us onto the road to success. _____

(3) We all share the common desire to achieve much but not the common opportunity to be successful. Too often we attribute success to some lucky break, but success is rarely so mysterious. Success always favors those who are diligent, just as the Chinese saying goes, "diligence is the key to success."

I come, I see, I'll conquer.

Writing 4

(1) This picture vividly demonstrates such a scene where three kids seem to enjoy themselves, which is not only for so many toys but also for their willingness to share toys with one another. Obviously, active sharing is what we can and should do in daily life, as sharing is of great importance and could bring you more happiness.

(2) The value of sharing cannot be too much emphasized. ____

(3) Therefore, our life would be enjoyable and meaningful if we are willing to share. But we should not grow to be such men who just hope to receive from others but are reluctant to give. Active sharing among people contributes to a more opening and inclusive world.

I come, I see, I'll conquer.

Writing 5

(1) As is shown in the picture, the runner of "tradition" is passing the baton to the runner of "modernity" in a relay race. The thought-conducive cartoon conveys a profound message, with the strong implications that traditional values can also usher us into a new era of modernity.

(2) It is no surprise that the cartoonist wants to draw our attention to the fact that one cannot go further without cherishing the past. _____

(3) From my point of view, tradition and modernity complement each other. Traditional culture will fulfill and endure with vitality and through innovation. And in return, modern cultural values will reinforce profound roots by carrying forward the tradition. So all Chinese people should cherish the merits of traditional culture and push forward it as the wheels of history keep rolling on.

I come, I see, I'll conquer.

Writing 6

(1) This cartoon presents to us a touching scene of two neighbors warmly greeting each other. Although such a picture is not commonly seen in the modern communities in our daily life, friendly neighborhood which has long been neglected is gaining more and more recognition.

(2) Indeed, neighbors' living harmoniously does bring with it a host of benefits. _____

(3) It is no exaggeration to say that nobody could live an easy life without getting along with the neighbors. So don't hesitate to greet your neighbors. Finally, we will find how rewarding it is to build up a friendly relationship with our neighbors, especially when we are in need.
